Explanation

<https://aws.amazon.com/it/premiumsupport/knowledge-center/s3-bucket-owner-access/> By default, an S3 object is owned by the AWS account that uploaded it. This is true even when the bucket is owned by another account. To get access to the object, the object owner must explicitly grant you (the bucket owner) access. The object owner can grant the bucket owner full control of the object by updating the access control list (ACL) of the object. The object owner can update the ACL either during a put or copy operation, or after the object is added to the bucket.

NEW QUESTION: 4

What information does the file `modules.dep` provide?

- A. A list of all modules available to the kernel.
- B. A list of modules compiled for this kernel.
- C. A list of modules the kernel needs to run.
- D. A list of modules required by each module.
- E. A list of devices and their module name.

Answer: D

Explanation:

From the man pages:

The `modules.dep.bin` as generated by `module-init-tools depmod`, lists the dependencies for every module in the directories under `/lib/modules/version`, where `modules.dep.bin` (or the human readable version `modules.dep`) is also located. It is used by utilities such as `modprobe`. The binary version will be used by default, if it was generated by a compatible version of `depmod`, with fallback to the generic `modules.dep`. These files are not intended for editing or use by any additional utilities as their format is subject to change in the future. You should use the `modinfo(8)` command to obtain information about modules in a future proof and compatible fashion rather than touching these files.
