- B. Bandwidth support for new applications
- C. Support for legacy applications
- D. Limited budget allocation
- E. Support for existing legacy equipment
- F. Limited timeframe to implement
- G. Policy limitations

Answer: B,C,E

Explanation:

Explanation/Reference:

Explanation:

Network design might be constrained by parameters that limit the solution. Legacy applications might still exist that must be supported going forward, and these applications might require a legacy protocol that may limit a design. Technical constraints include the following:

Existing wiring does not support new technology.

Bandwidth might not support new applications.

The network must support existing legacy equipment.

Legacy applications must be supported (application compatibility).
