NEW QUESTION: 1

You use Microsoft SQL Server to develop a database application. You create a stored procedure named `usp_calculategrowth`. The stored procedure modifies rows and can result in several different exceptions.

You need to ensure that when the stored procedure is executed, the following requirements are met:

Which six Transact-SQL statements should you use? (To answer, move the appropriate SQL statements from the list of statements to the answer area and arrange them in the correct order.)

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

Box 1: BEGIN TRY

A TRY...CATCH construct consists of two parts: a TRY block and a CATCH block. When an error condition is detected in a Transact-SQL statement that is inside a TRY block, control is passed to a CATCH block where the error can be processed.

A TRY block starts with the BEGIN TRY statement and ends with the END TRY statement.

Box 2: Exec `usp_calculategrowth`

Box 3: END TRY

Box 4: BEGIN CATCH

A TRY block must be followed immediately by a CATCH block. A CATCH block starts with the BEGIN CATCH statement and ends with the END CATCH statement.

Box 5: EXEC `xp_logevent` ...

`xp_logevent` logs a user-defined message in the SQL Server log file and in the Windows Event Viewer. `xp_logevent` can be used to send an alert without sending a message to the client.

Incorrect:

Not RAISERROR: RAISERROR generates an error message and initiates error processing for the session.

The message is returned as a server error message to the calling application or to an associated CATCH block of a TRY...CATCH construct. New applications should use THROW instead.

Box 6: END CATCH
