NEW QUESTION: 1

A healthcare company has several smaller outlying locations with very limited bandwidth to corporate headquarters. Maintenance of computers in these locations is proving problematic, especially operating system upgrades and deployment. They would like to completely automate the operating system distribution, installation, and configuration for connected PCs in these locations with minimal impact on the WAN. They have selected a Site Server for each location. What must they do to enable re-imaging of managed computers to occur locally in each remote location?

- A. install Package and Deployment site services on the designated site server; enable PXE Configuration policies; enable the Deployment Task Handler policy
- B. enable Deployment PXE service components on the designated site server; create a preboot configuration supporting PXE; enable the Deployment Plug-in policy
- C. enable Deployment Site server and Deployment plug-in policies; establish a remote Deployment portal on the site server; configure Package Server image replication
- D. install Task and Package services on the designated site server; enable the Deployment Site server policy, Deployment Plug-in policy, and Automation Folders policy

Answer: D

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation

The Replicated Folder (Folder1) refers to the name of the DFS target, not the name of the local folder. It does not matter if the local folder name does not match the name of the DFS target. Therefore, replication will work as normal according to the configured schedule.
